

The conduct and ethical behavior of a professional is determined by the degree of respect with which he/she interacts with the public that he/ she serves. This public consists of both students and colleagues. The intent of the code is to define the parameters of that interaction, and to provide for adherence to the specific components.

Compliance with this code, as with all law in an open society, depends primarily upon